

- Manoeuvres, such as turning left, right or going straight at intersections, backing up, changing lanes and parallel parking.

For more information on the driving skills and manoeuvres you may be tested on, please review Chapter 9 in RoadSense for Drivers and Session 20 in Tuning up for Drivers.

One more thing — you'll need to provide a registered, insured vehicle that meets safety standards for a road test. For more information on this, see Chapter 9 in RoadSense for Drivers.

Tips for passing your road test

Here are some tips from ICBC driver examiners on how to pass the Class 5 and 7 road tests:

- Practise all the driving manoeuvres you may be asked to do as part of your road test, including parallel parking, parking on hills, and two- and three-point turns.
- Keep to posted speed limits. Do not keep up to speeding traffic.
- Watch for school zones and playgrounds. Speeding through school zones and playgrounds is a common reason for drivers to fail their test.
- Keep a safe distance from other vehicles.
- Make full stops for stop signs, and stop in the correct position. When it's safe to move out, pull out slowly, scanning the intersection.
- When turning right, shoulder check so you know there are no cyclists, pedestrians or other road users heading straight through the intersection (and therefore into your path).
- Signal, mirror-check and shoulder-check whenever you change lanes or direction.
- Scan intersections before entering, even if it's a green light while you approach.
- Make it a habit to always look for potential hazards. Study the list of hazardous situations in RoadSense for Drivers and call them out to the examiner during the hazard perception part of the road test. For example, many drivers have failed to call out blind driveways during their tests.

Our driver examiners recommend all new drivers review the helpful, detailed information about safe-driving habits in RoadSense for Drivers and Tuning Up for Drivers.

Ready to take your road test?

- Book your appointment with your nearest Driver Licensing Centre:
 - In Greater Vancouver, call 604-661-2255; in Abbotsford, Chilliwack, Mission, Kelowna and Prince George, call 1-888-715-7775.
 - In the Lower Mainland, Kelowna or Prince George, you can book a Class 5, 6, 7 or 8 road test online at icbc.com. In other areas, please contact the nearest Driver Licensing Centre.
- Try to arrive about 10 minutes early to complete the paperwork before your road test appointment begins.
- Bring the same identification you used to apply for your learner's licence, plus your learner's licence.
- Make sure your vehicle meets safety standards and is properly insured. And remember to have your vehicle registration papers with you.
- Remember to bring your test fee and the fee for your new licence. For more information on current test fees check the Driver Licensing section on icbc.com.
- Please provide at least 48 hours' cancellation notice or a valid reason acceptable to ICBC if you can't make your road test appointment. Otherwise we'll have to charge a $25 fee.

Statement of Limitation:

The information in this publication is intended to provide general information only and is not intended to provide legal or professional advice. We have used plain language to help readers understand some of the laws affecting the topic of this publication at the date it was written. You should follow the more detailed wording and requirements of current applicable statutes and regulations, even if they contradict the wording and requirements set out in this publication.

preparing for your driver licensing tests passenger vehicles Class 5 and 7 building trust. driving confidence.

We all want safer roads in British Columbia. Our crash prevention programs can help us get there. They also help us control the cost of insurance claims and keep our insurance rates low and stable.

The Graduated Licensing Program (GLP) was developed to help new drivers gain experience gradually, so they can increase their driving confidence under conditions that are safer for everyone. As part of this program, new drivers must pass two road tests before getting a Class 5 licence. These tests are based on research that ensures they are thorough and comprehensive.

Driver examiners have been trained to test each driver in the same way. They use score sheets to track results so that drivers across the province are tested equally and fairly.

To help you prepare for your road tests, these two booklets available from ICBC are essential:

- RoadSense for Drivers (free)
- Tuning Up for Drivers (free for new drivers; $5 for all others).

They can be picked up from any Driver Licensing Centre or downloaded at icbc.com.

We want you to be happy with your results. Studying these guides thoroughly and practising your driving carefully will give you the best chance of success.

Are you a new resident to B.C.?

Welcome! If you have a valid driver's licence from another province, state, or country, you can drive for 90 days in B.C. After that, you'll need to apply for a B.C. driver's licence, which will include bringing in your old driver's licence, passing a vision test and medical screening — you may have to pass the knowledge and driving tests.

Preparing for your knowledge test (Class 7L)

RoadSense for Drivers is your best resource when preparing for your knowledge test, as all the questions are based on this booklet. To see how well you know the information, you can take our free online practice test on icbc.com.

It's best to arrive early for your knowledge test. While most of our Driver Licensing Centres offer these tests without an appointment, you may not be able to test everyone if it's busy.

Before taking your knowledge test, you will need to pass a simple vision and medical screening to make sure you're in good enough shape to drive. For more information on the vision and medical screening, please see RoadSense for Drivers, Chapter 9 — Your Licence.

Knowledge test

What's in it?

The knowledge test has 50 multiple-choice questions that test how well you know the information in RoadSense for Drivers. It's available in English, French, Arabic, Cantonese, Croatian, Farsi, Mandarin, Punjabi, Russian, Spanish and Vietnamese.

Where do I take it?

This test is taken at any of our driver licensing locations and can usually be done at a computer terminal. In some parts of our province, it is only offered as a written test. Make sure to start your test at least one hour before we close — you'll want to make sure you have enough time to finish.

How do I prepare?

Here are some simple and important tips:

- It's harder than you may think, so study the RoadSense for Drivers guide well.
- Keep in mind that many questions are designed to require thinking and understanding, not just memorized facts.
- We recommend that you take a practice test online at icbc.com.
- Make sure you bring in two pieces of ID (please see RoadSense for Drivers or icbc.com for a list of acceptable documents).
- Don't stress during the test. Read through each question and take your time.
- Ask us questions if you need help. We want you to succeed.

What does it cost?

The fees are $15 for the test, and $10 for your Class 7L photo learner's licence.

About your road test

Your road test is an opportunity to show how well you know and understand the rules of the road and how confident you are driving safely.

Before the road test, you will meet your driver examiner, who will explain what to expect during the road test, including the driving manoeuvres that you will be tested on. Your driver examiner will be glad to answer any questions before your road test, but can only answer questions about directions once the road test begins.

To avoid distracting you during the road test, your driver examiner will remain quiet, except to give you directions or tell you about a situation that requires your attention. Your driver examiner will not try to trick you or ask you to do anything illegal. At any point, if you are not clear about directions, you can ask your driver examiner for clarification.

Keep in mind that your driver examiner is not there to teach you or coach you through the road test, but to evaluate your driving against criteria based on safe-driving practices and the rules of the road.

At the end of the test, your driver examiner will explain your results and give you some helpful suggestions to further improve your driving.

Preparing for your road test

The best way to prepare for your road test is to read and re-read Tuning Up for Drivers. Then, it's all about practise, practise, practise. The more hours you can practise, the more skilled, confident and competent you'll be during your road test.

What to practise?

- Skills, such as observation, speed control and communication.
- Hazard perception, such as trucks turning, children, pedestrians, and blind spots.